Welcome

This year Australia will host the largest international philatelic exhibition to be held in the southern hemisphere for the last 30 years. I would like to extend an invitation to all of our readers and the Australian collecting fraternity to attend.

Michael Zsolt
Manager, Philatelic
Australia Post

All applications for the reproduction of Australian stamps or any correspondence should be made in writing to:

Manager Philatelic
Australia Post
GPO Box 1777
MELBOURNE VIC 3001
mailorder@auspost.com.au

Visitors from around the world will descend on Melbourne, with more than half the stand-holders coming from overseas to participate. Specialist stamp and coin dealers will be on hand throughout the show to offer advice and with a variety of philatelic products for sale. International postal administrations from 21 countries will have the latest stamp issues and philatelic products.

It's hard to imagine a more appropriate setting for Australia 2013 than the heritage-listed Royal Exhibition Building in the tranquil Carlton Gardens – site of the Melbourne International Flower Show each year.

Australia Post will be releasing four new stamp issues at the event. A major highlight of the event, and one that we all celebrate is the centenary of our first national postage stamp – Kangaroo and Map.

Those with a season pass will have the opportunity to see all four stamp releases, as well as the time to explore the exhibits and competition frames. Australia Post will also unveil its latest innovation of its instant stamp technology – first introduced to the philatelic world by Australia Post at Australia '99.

Australia Post is very proud to be the Principal sponsor for this major philatelic event and we encourage all those with an interest in stamp collecting or Australian culture and history to come along. The show will appeal to established collectors, those thinking of taking up the hobby for the first time and past collectors looking to return to the hobby.

And if you have always wanted the opportunity to see some of the world's best philatelic exhibits, you will not be disappointed.

I look forward to seeing you there.

THE WORLD STAMP EXPO

10–15 MAY 2013

A plan to replace state stamps with a "Commonwealth of Australia" series was developed in 1903. Samples of how the stamps would look were produced, but none were ever adopted. (Chapman Collection, Australia Post)

Welcome from the President

The Australia 2013 organising committee would like to welcome all those planning to attend Australia 2013. The event will offer much to interest the novice collector, serious students of philately, or families wanting information about old family collections. Many hours of planning have been spent to ensure its success.

We also welcome the many exhibitors, dealers, postal administrations and clubs from around the world who join with us in our celebration of philately and the centenary of the Kangaroo and Map stamp; the symbol of Australian philately. Selections from the Royal Collection and the Australia Post National Philatelic Collection will feature rarities of Australian philately. The items from the Royal Collection were last seen in Australia in 1929.

In addition, there will be more than 54,000 exhibit entry album pages from 55 countries. You will have the opportunity to view 500-year-old letters, the 1840 Penny Black stamp and stamp rarities of the Australian colonies. Exhibit themes are diverse and include whales, orchids, sailing ships and rocket mail.

While you are at the show, take the opportunity to purchase special items from the impressive Australia Post stand and souvenirs from the Australia 2013 organising committee. Come and find out why philately is such an absorbing hobby or confirm what you already know!

We would also like to thank our Principal sponsor, Australia Post, for its significant support for Australia 2013.

Kangaroo and Map

1913–2013

Release date 10 May 2013

In 2013 we mark the centenary of the first Australian Commonwealth postage stamp issue. For some 60 years prior to its release the colonies had produced their own postage stamps. This issue is the last in the Colonial Heritage stamp series (2010–13), a celebration of Australia's rich philatelic heritage.

Australia 2013 gives us the opportunity to celebrate the centenary of the Kangaroo and Map with the rest of the philatelic world. While technically the Kangaroo and Map was not, of course, a colonial stamp, in this commemorative context it forms a bookend to the colonial period of stamp design and production.

Released 12 years after Federation, our first national stamp had a troubled beginning. This was partly due to the complexity of a changing postal administration, but it was also political in nature; the revolving office-holder of postmaster-general (11 occupants of the ministry between 1901 and 1912) and the incumbents' ideas around appropriate content pointed to competing narratives of nationhood.

Despite convening a specialist stamp board and holding an international competition to obtain an outstanding design, Australia's first national stamp issue – the Kangaroo and Map – proved a contentious result.

The design of no single artist, it engendered widespread anger that the King's head was absent, mockery that a kangaroo should be adopted as a national symbol and dislike for a design that was considered rudimentary compared with the ornate designs of the time. Since its turbulent release, however, the Kangaroo and Map design has gained much respectability.

The 60c base-rate stamp features the statue of an Australian Light Horseman in the Park of the Australian Soldier at Beersheva (Be'er Sheva) in Israel. The statue is the work of Australian sculptor Peter Corlett. The $2.60 stamp features contemporary images of Australian Light Horsemen. The battle scene, once considered to be a photograph of the actual Battle of Beersheba, is now accepted to be a re-enactment made the following year.

The Battle of Beersheba took place on 31 October 1917 and was part of a wider British offensive known as the third Battle of Gaza during World War I. The final phase of this day-long battle was the famous mounted charge of the 4th Light Horse Brigade, widely considered to be the last great mounted charge in military history. Thirty-one Australian Light Horsemen were killed in the charge and 36 were wounded. The capture of Beersheba allowed British Empire forces to break the Ottoman line near Gaza and then advance into Palestine.

Products released by Israel as part of the joint issue will be available from stand holder, Max Stern and Co at Australia 2013.

Prior to 1913, paper currency circulating in Australia comprised banknotes issued by trading banks and by one State Government. However, the Australian Notes Act 1910 had made it an offence for any bank to circulate banknotes issued by a State and withdrew their status as legal tender.

The first banknote issued by the Commonwealth of Australia was a 10 shilling note bearing the serial number M000001. The official numbering ceremony of the note took place on 1 May 1913 at the government printing works in Flinders Street, Melbourne. The number was printed on the note, by means of a hand-operated press, by the Honourable Judith Denman, the five-year-old daughter of the Governor General, Lord Denman, who was given the note as a souvenir after the ceremony. The note is blue in colour and represents the Australian Coat of Arms on the front and on the back, the Goulburn Weir in Victoria, symbolising the importance of water for the country. The note currently holds the record of the highest price ever paid for an Australian banknote and will be a feature exhibit at the Australia 2013 Stamp Expo.

Pardalotes

Australian birds

Release date 11 May 2013

This stamp issue is the fourth in the Australian Birds series. It focuses on pardalotes, a family (Pardalotidae) of foliage-gleaning, mainly insectivorous birds native to Australia and sometimes known as “peep-wrens” or “diamond birds”. Unlike wrens, pardalotes do not have the upward-pointing tail.

The name “pardalote” derives from the Greek word meaning spotted, as small whitish spots are common to the family, although most particularly to the Spotted Pardalote and Forty-spotted Pardalote.

Pardalotes are small, around 8.5cm to 12cm, with short tails and wings, longish legs and thick stubby beaks. Their plumage combines both dull and striking colours. They prefer a eucalypt habitat over anything else – often the high outer foliage – and they play a strong role in controlling lerp infestations (a sap-sucking insect). These monogamous birds usually feed singly or in pairs during the breeding season, darting quickly among the foliage or like small missiles from tree to tree. They often share in the tasks of nest building, egg incubation and rearing the young. Most species nest in horizontal tunnels built into earth banks.

Designer Gallery

Christopher Pope is a renowned Australian wildlife artist. He will join other designers, including members of the Australia Post Design Studio, at this year's Stamp Expo Designer Gallery. Christopher will be attending on Saturday 11 May and Sunday 12 May.

Collectors and visitors have the opportunity to have material signed by associated designers, and to chat to them about how their ideas for stamp and product designs arose.

Once visitors have purchased products they can head to the Designer Gallery in the Australia Post stand to have material signed. There will be a limit of five philatelic pieces for signing to external designers and illustrators at any one time.

Also of interest will be a wall of artworks by designers from the Australia Post Design Studio. The artworks interpret a glossary of the more common philatelic terminology.

50 years of stamps

Cocos (Keeling) Islands

During WWII and up to 1954 an RAAF Post Office operated on Cocos (Keeling) Islands (CKI), run by RAAF personnel and using Australian stamps. In 1952 the Malaysian postal administration set up a post office using Singapore stamps until Australia assumed administration of CKI in 1955. Australian stamps were used until 1963 when the first CKI stamps were issued on 11 June.

The first issue was a pictorial definitive series depicting the copra industry (3d); a constellation aircraft (5d); a map of the islands (8d); palms (1/-); a Jukong (2/-); and a white tern (2/3). The 1963 stamp designs are presented as imperforate in the sheetlet for this stamp issue and microdated. The 50th anniversary stamps are also presented as a se-tenant strip.

This is the first in a series on Australian historical architecture and features four of Australia's oldest Government Houses. The issue celebrates the beauty and range of these distinctive and historic buildings.

Government House in Perth is one of the State's most magnificent properties and in 2013 celebrates its 150th anniversary. Built in 1863 both the buildings and gardens are listed on the State's heritage register. It was designed by Lieutenant-Colonel (later Sir) E Y W Henderson, RE. The stamp image is reproduced courtesy of Jon Green Photographer.

Government House in Hobart was completed in 1857 and is regarded as one of the best Vice-Regal residences in the Commonwealth. Designed in neo-Gothic style by William Porden Kay, some of the sandstone excavated from quarries at the site was used.

Government House in Sydney was designed by Edward Blore, architect to King William IV. It is one of the finest examples of gothic revival architecture in NSW. The stamp image is reproduced courtesy of Richard Glover, Benjamin Jakabek and Historic Houses Trust of NSW.

Government House Adelaide is the oldest continually-inhabited Vice-Regal residence in Australia. It was from a design by English architect, Edward O'Brien, which was amended by George Strickland Kingston, the assistant Surveyor-General of South Australia. The stamp image is reproduced courtesy of SALife Magazine.

Christmas Island is covered with lush green vegetation and is notable for its flora and fauna. It is home to around 411 plant species, of which 213 are native and about 18 endemic. This stamp issue depicts four common species of flowering shrub native to the island: Colubrina pedunculata, Abutilon listeri, Urena lobata var. sinuata and Indigofera hirsuta.

Artist Dierdre Bean has detailed the shape and texture of each shrub's foliage and flower, as well as the relationship between the leaf and bloom. The approach is from the long tradition of botanical art. This is the first stamp issue for which Dierdre has been commissioned.
