Signs of the Times

Dear Collectors

Welcome to the July edition of the Stamp Bulletin, which begins with a favourite subject of many collectors – lighthouses. The romance of these coastal lights also make them fascinating for many tourists and weekend sightseers.

The lighthouses that dot the Australian coastline play an important role in maintaining our maritime safety record. The stamp designs in this issue present a selection of our better-known structures in an attractive block of four.

More and more Australians are taking to bushwalking as a leisure activity. With an increase in the number of quality walking trails it is no surprise to this popularity reflected in bushwalking clubs and associations. The activity is generally associated with lifestyle and health benefits.

This year Australia plays host to an important sporting event, with the Netball World Cup being held in Sydney. The top 16 netball nations compete over 10 days in August, with Australia's team, the Diamonds, defending its title as current Netball World Cup champions.

A tripartite joint stamp issue marks the 50th anniversary of bilateral relations between Singapore and Australia, and Singapore and New Zealand, the stamp designs representing the Parliament House of each country. Australia's architecturally important seat of government was opened on 9 May 1988 and is the focal point of our capital city. This stamp issue includes a joint first day cover and joint stamp pack.

Signs of the Times is not an August stamp issue, but we include it in this edition to alert collectors to its 1 September release date. The stamp issue takes a nostalgic look at the early use of neon lighting in promotion and advertising.

This stamp issue features four historic and architecturally diverse Australian lighthouses.

On 1 July 1915 the Commonwealth of Australia officially accepted responsibility for all Australian landfall and coastal lights from state governments. Today the Australian Maritime Safety Authority (AMSA) is responsible for maintaining navigation aids at some 388 sites around the 59,735 kilometres of coastline.

Cape Byron lighthouse (1901), is situated on the mainland's easterly point and is the most visited Australian lighthouse.

Cape Leeuwin lighthouse (1896), located on the continent's most south-west point, is Western Australia's tallest traditional lighthouse.

North Reef lighthouse (1878) was built on a reef in the Capricorn Group off the Queensland coast. Over the years, sand has accumulated around the structure, forming a small island.

Australia's most dramatic lighthouse location is Tasman Island, Tasmania. The cast-iron lighthouse (1906), was prefabricated in England and hauled piece-by-piece up the precipitous 250-metre-high cliffs before being assembled.

Organisers feel that organised walking tours allow participants to reconnect with nature.

The varied and spectacular terrain of Australia is a bushwalkers' paradise. From the mountains to the Red Centre, the coast to the forest, this issue features four popular walking tracks for hikers that traverse the country.

The six-kilometre-long National Pass in the Greater Blue Mountains World Heritage Area of New South Wales lies 100 kilometres from Sydney and is easily accessible by car or train. The trail was built with picks, shovels, crowbars and dynamite between 1906 and 1907 and was officially opened in 1908.

The Cape to Cape Track runs for 135 kilometres along the Western Australian coast between Cape Naturaliste in the north and Cape Leeuwin in the south. The entire walk is challenging, taking five to seven days; however there are easier sections that take from half a day to a day to walk. The track was officially opened in 2001.

The Larapinta Trail in the Northern Territory follows the West MacDonnell Ranges for 223 kilometres between Alice Springs and Mount Sonder. The walk includes sites sacred to the Arrernte people, who have permitted tourists to visit.

The Overland Track winds for 65 kilometres between Cradle Mountain and Lake St Clair in the Tasmanian Wilderness World Heritage Area.

This stamp issue celebrates Netball World Cup SYDNEY 2015 (NWC2015), which will be held from 7 to 16 August 2015 at Sydney Olympic Park. The top 16 netball nations from around the globe will compete over 10 days for international netball's ultimate prize.

The four-yearly event, held since 1963, is a celebration of the sport of netball, which is the most popular women's team sport in Australia. NWC2015 marks the second time that Sydney has hosted the tournament, the last being in 1991, and the third time for Australia.

The 16 teams qualified via a series of Regional Qualifying Events held in all corners of the world. Set to compete this year are Australia, Barbados, England, Fiji, Jamaica, Malawi, New Zealand, Samoa, Scotland, Singapore, South Africa, Sri Lanka, Trinidad and Tobago, Uganda, Wales and Zambia.

Australia is the event's reigning champion, winning 10 out of 13 tournaments to date and coming second three times.

The Australian Diamonds team is currently ranked No. 1 in the International Netball Federation's world rankings and will defend its World Cup title in Sydney.

Australia's Parliament House designed by Romaldo Giurgola opened in 1988.

This joint issue with New Zealand and Singapore marks 50 years of bilateral relations between Singapore and Australia, and Singapore and New Zealand. The 50th anniversary and the release of this joint issue coincide with Singapore 2015 World Stamp Exhibition. The three stamps depict the parliament houses of the three countries.

Opened in 1988, the Parliament House of Australia is the third to accommodate the federal government. This architecturally significant building is made almost entirely from Australian materials. Among its notable design elements are the forecourt mosaic, designed by Aboriginal artist Michael Nelson Jagamara from Papunya and based on his painting Possum and Wallaby Dreaming, and the 81-metre-high stainless-steel flag-mast.

In 2015, the New Zealand Parliament marks the 150th anniversary of its relocation from Auckland to Wellington. Today's Parliament House emerged from the ashes of its predecessor, destroyed by fire in 1907. Only half of the planned building was built so Parliament House long had problems of too little space before "the Beehive" was built to address this in 1979.

Opened on 4 October 1999, Singapore's Parliament House was built to accommodate its increasing number of members of parliament. It comprises three "blocks" integrated with a restored 19th-century building. Its rooftop prism is a modern interpretation of a traditional dome and its extensive use of columns a nod to classical architecture and the authority this symbolises.

800th Anniversary of Magna Carta

Magna Carta (or Great Charter) is a charter of human rights. It is a foundation stone of constitutional and parliamentary democratic government in Britain and in countries that have adopted British law, including Australia.

The document was signed and sealed by King John of England at Runnymede, near Windsor, on 15 June 1215. Several versions were to follow, including the 1297 reissue by King Edward I. Only four copies of the 1297 version are in existence, including one purchased by the Australian government in 1952 which is now on display in Parliament House, Canberra.

800th Anniversary of Magna Carta

“No free man shall be seized or imprisoned, or stripped of his rights or possessions, or outlawed or exiled, or deprived of his standing in any other way, nor will we proceed with force against him, or send others to do so, except by the lawful judgement of his equals or by the law of the land.” Magna Carta, clause 39, 1215

The Cocos (Keeling) Islands is a group of 27 islands in two atolls, with a total land area of around 14 square kilometres and a highest elevation of five metres. Only two of the islands – West and Home Islands – have permanent settlements.

This stamp issue features four of the uninhabited isles, all of which are part of the southern atoll; they are they are Pulu Klapa Satu, Pulu Maraya, Pulu Blan Madar and Pulu Beras (Prison Island). The islands are densely covered with coconut palms and tropical vegetation, and largely ringed with gravelly, white coral-sand beaches.

The designer has brought visual interest and variation to the stamps by using the sky and the horizon line as significant visual components. The horizon operates not only as a design element, drawing the four stamps together, but it also reflects the dominance of this element when voyaging across the open ocean, as one might when travelling to the Cocos (Keeling) Islands by boat.

All but two islands in the Cocos (Keeling) Island group are uninhabited.

The Dandy Pig was acknowledged by Greater Dandenong Council in 2013 for the sign's social, cultural and historical significance to the community.

Neon signs are intensely coloured electric signs lighted by long, luminous gas-discharge tubes that contain rarefied neon or other gases. Neon tubes were first demonstrated in 1910 by Georges Claude at the Paris Motor Show, and were reportedly first used to advertise a barber's shop. Neon signage and advertising subsequently became popular throughout the world. Today we are conscious of the heritage value of our historic neon signs.

The Skipping Girl, known as Little Audrey, possibly the country's best known neon sign, was built by Neon Electric Signs and erected in 1936 in Victoria Street, Abbotsford, Victoria, as an animated advertisement for Skipping Girl Vinegar.

After World War II, Queensland's Gold Coast became a popular destination for Australians. The Pink Poodle, built in 1967 on the corner of Fern Street and the Gold Coast Highway, Surfers Paradise, was a popular honeymoon motel. The motel was demolished in 2004 but the famous sign was saved, and now stands in Fern Street near its original location.

The jaunty Dandy Pig neon sign was first erected in the 1950s on the Princes Highway, Dandenong, Victoria, for the Gippsland Co-operative Bacon Curing Company. After closure of the factory in 1983, the much loved pig languished in storage before being restored and re-erected in 1993.
