First, I'd like to draw your attention to some new products added to the recently released Honoured by Australia stamp issue. Individual first day covers and maxicards, available only by mail order, pay further tribute to these great humanitarians.

I would like to thank you all for supporting the philatelic program. My commitment was to offer a well-rounded program with something for everyone, and a number of the year's stamp issues have been based on collector requests.

We are also excited about the launch of our new philatelic website. This is the "go to" place for philatelic information, views and news from around the country and overseas. We encourage collectors to contribute their own articles for online publication, through which they can pass on knowledge and advice on specialist areas of stamp collecting. You will also be able to digitally display your own collection on the website's image gallery, which will be linked to the new Australia Post Philatelic Instagram page, @auspostcollectables as well as following us on Facebook, at www.facebook.com/auspostcollectables, and Twitter, @stampsaustralia.

Look out for our newsletter in the mail that will outline changes for the upcoming year ahead, our commitment to you as a dedicated collector and our exciting new initiatives that will make collecting easy, convenient, simple and more enjoyable. I encourage all collectors to provide feedback on our philatelic products and services through our website auspostcollectables.com.au, or email us at DLAustralianStamps@auspost.com.au. All suggestions and ideas on how we can improve and better your collecting experiences are welcomed.

Happy Holidays to all, and I look forward to returning with an exciting stamp issue program for collectors in 2016.

Australia Post has issued Christmas stamps every year since 1980, and again this year we present both religious and secular themes. Christmas time is the season for joyous celebration and goodwill, and this year's Christmas stamp designs convey greetings based on the traditional religious story of the birth of Christ and also on modern designs featuring familiar trappings of the festive season.

The religious stamps include a colourful and joyful interpretation of the traditional Biblical story. The minisheet from this issues represents the scene shortly after the birth of Christ. The tiny baby lies in his manger, surrounded by Mary and Joseph and the adoring animals. An owl gravely observes the scene from the rafters above.

To the right, the three wise men, also called Magi or kings, have arrived from the east on their camels searching for the Saviour.

They find the Christ Child by following a guiding star, and on arrival offer gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh. A scarlet angel announces the arrival of the wise men with a triumphant trumpet fanfare.

Not all who observe the celebration of Christmas are Christians, and the other three stamps are designed to appeal to those who prefer a more secular celebration. For many, Christmas is foremost a time to gather with family and friends and reflect on the year past. It is also an opportunity to show forgiveness, peace and reconciliation, to demonstrate love for those dear to us, and to enjoy a holiday break. The two designs represent the symbolic dove of peace and, as a gesture of generosity and love, a wrapped gift.

In creating his tropical snowman, illustrator Stuart McLachlan has enlisted the aid of a Green Turtle (Chelonia mydas) upon which a coconut delicately balances.

Located in the Indian Ocean some 2,600 kilometres north-west of Perth, Christmas Island is the sole peak of an underwater mountain range rising above the ocean's surface.

The island came under Australian control in 1958, but Australia Post has produced its stamps only since 1993. Over recent years, the Christmas Island Christmas issue has taken a humorous approach to linking the festive theme to the island's name.

Red Crabs (Gecarcoidea natalis) are a familiar sight on Christmas

Island, and they make a strong appearance in this Christmas stamp issue. Like dexterous circus performers mimicking a human pyramid, they stack themselves into a Christmas tree in the island's forested interior. Atop the crab-tree an Emerald Dove (Chalcophaps indica natalis) is poised, with a string of tinsel in its beak.

In the other stamp, the comical Red Crabs hail the presence of a tropical, if not also oxymoronic, snowman – the northern hemisphere symbol having been transported to the isle in the sunny south.

The collection includes full-colour images and background information for each of the featured stamp issues. The 2015 Collection of Australian Stamps also includes a matching protective slip-case.

This album is designed to complement your collection, but is also a wonderful gift as an introduction to philately, and the events that were commemorated or celebrated by Australia in 2015.

Send us feedback on our products and services.

2015 Collection of Australian Stamps Executive edition

A preferred edition for many collectors is the prestigious Executive edition, with leather-look cover and slip-case. Gold-foil stamping is used on the cover of this edition, with its brass corner protectors and gilt-edged pages. Only 7,000 individually numbered Executive editions of the 2015 Collection of Australian Stamps have been produced.

Australian Territories Collection of Stamps 2015

Three of Australia's external territories are represented in this collection of gummed stamps, sheetlets and minisheets – the Australian Antarctic Territory, Christmas Island and Cocos (Keeling) Islands. The collection is an ideal gift and includes the LNY zodiac sheet for 2015.
