Welcome Stranger
150 Years

Dear Collectors

Welcome to the first edition of the Stamp Bulletin for 2019 and the year of themes and celebrations ahead. I would like to welcome you back, and also new subscribers to the Collectables e-newsletter. You may be starting a collection for the very first time, so I hope you enjoy the journey ahead.

Michael Zsolt
Manager, Philatelic Australia Post

I would also like to thank collectors for the support extended to Australia's farming communities through the purchase of Drought Relief stamps, the sale of which helps those affected. This important initiative gave us all an opportunity to offer assistance.

Our year begins with a celebration of the year of the pig and this year's Lunar New Year stamp release. The product range will interest collectors, especially a joint Australia Post and China Post stamp pack.

A stamp release, also in January, marks the resettlement of the entire population of Pitcairn Island to Norfolk Island in 1856. After 33 long days at sea, and most onboard suffering sea-sickness, the ship arrived on 8 June. For most settlers their arrival was dominated by first encounters, including the sight of the large-scale sandstone buildings.

In February we release a range of stamp designs that will also be made available through our Personalised Stamps™ service.

The designs provide stamps suitable for celebrations, special occasions, or just for everyday use. We'll also mark the centenary of the birth of Robin Boyd (1919-1971), one of Australia's leading architects whose reputation was forged through his innovative design thinking, remarkable buildings and subject commentary.

In the mid-19th century the world watched on as gold fever gripped the nation, bringing thousands of prospectors to Victoria. While some would be disappointed the lives of many would change forever. In 1869 John Deason and Richard Oates struck gold just below the surface, uncovering a massive 100kg gold nugget called the Welcome Stranger. A single stamp marks the 150th anniversary of the find.

I hope you enjoy the range of collectable products presented.

Christmas Island Lunar New Year Year of the Pig

務農時代，中國人的家中
必養豬，因為豬圓滿的
外形象徵著財富與幸福。
因此，家字是由宀(屋
頂)和豕(豬)組成的。

In ancient times,
a Chinese house was
only considered a home
if it included a Pig, partly because the Pig's rotund appearance was seen as a symbol of abundance and happiness. This is why the Chinese character
家 (family) comprises 宀
(roof) and 豕 (pig).

of the current series by designer, Dani Poon.

Lunar New Year is one of the most important traditional Chinese festivals and is celebrated both in China and in many countries with significant Chinese populations. The Year of the Pig begins on 5 February 2019 and ends on 24 January
2020.

The kind, cheerful and empathetic
Pig is the 12th and final animal sign of the 12-year Chinese Zodiac cycle. During the Jade

Emperor's race to determine the order of the animal signs,
the Pig stopped for a rest and a meal, finishing the race in last place. The Pig preferred to enjoy the journey rather than rush to the finish line. This is typical of the Pig's patient nature, which when combined with its other attributes, is why those born under this sign are often suited
to a career as a teacher, doctor,
vet or social worker.

Norfolk Island Pitcairn Settlement

2007142
Minisheet

In 1831, the population of Pitcairn Island made a short-lived and disastrous relocation to Tahiti, losing 20 per cent of their population to disease. Despite returning to Pitcairn soon after, its small size meant that finding a new home was still a necessity. After discussions with British authorities, Norfolk Island was put forward as an option, due to its fertile soil and the pending closure of the British penal settlement there. Central to the efforts to secure a new home was community leader, minister and school teacher George Hunn Nobbs (1799–1884). Nobbs had been granted an audience with Her Majesty Queen Victoria in 1852. The Pitcairn Islanders were granted permission to relocate to Norfolk Island, Nobbs referring to this act as “Her Majesty’s most gracious offer”. On 8 June 1856, the entire Pitcairn population (193 people, plus one baby born at sea) concluded a harsh 33-day voyage to their new home.

Australian identity was central to the groundbreaking designs of celebrated modernist architect Robin Boyd.

This stamp issue marks the centenary of the birth of Robin Boyd CBE (1919–71), a leading architect and architectural writer and commentator in Australia through the late 1940s, 50s and 60s. A key proponent of modernist design, he contributed most significantly to residential design. His reputation was forged not only through his remarkable buildings but also through his innovative design thinking, communicated via lectures, professional activities and key writings, with two of his many books becoming classics.

Boyd believed in the importance of Australian identity and how this could be served by architecture. He sought to galvanise architecture with identity, lifestyle and place to create a distinctly Australian modernist form. He embraced innovation in design, materials and technology, investing buildings with qualities that would elevate the spirit and aspirations of their occupants.

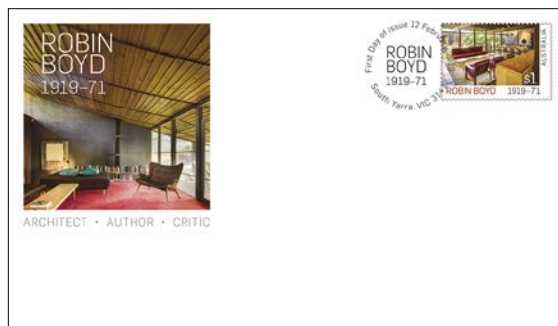

The stamp design shows Boyd House II, the South Yarra home the architect designed for himself and his family in 1957. Built on a narrow inner-suburban block, its two pavilions span the block's width and are separated by a glass-walled courtyard. The two-storey front pavilion was designed as the adults' living and entertaining quarters and the single-storey back pavilion as the children's quarters, reflecting both family relationships and a sophisticated social lifestyle. The two pavilions are held in a single form by a roofline that drapes in a graceful curve from the double height of one to the low elevation of the other, with timber lined ceilings over the pavilions and spaced cabling across the courtyard.

The heritage-listed building is now home to the Robin Boyd Foundation, established to preserve Boyd's legacy and to continue to foster good design and a broad appreciation of its social benefits.

The Welcome Stranger remains the largest alluvial gold nugget ever found. The second largest, the Welcome Nugget (69kg), was found in Ballarat, Victoria, in 1858.

The Victorian gold rush of the mid-19th century attracted prospectors from all over the world. On 5 February 1869, Cornish miners John Deason and Richard Oates literally struck gold near the town of Moliagul with their remarkable discovery of the massive nugget known as the Welcome Stranger. The nugget lay only three centimetres below the surface, near the base of a tree in Bulldog Gully goldfields, and had a gross weight of over 100kg. The smelted nugget yielded 71kg of gold, for which the London Chartered Bank in nearby Dunolly paid Deason and Oates £9,583 (today's value would be nearly $4 million). Converted into ingots, the gold was transported to Melbourne, then loaded on the steamship Reigate for the voyage to the Bank of England.

An obelisk commemorating the discovery of the Welcome Stranger was erected near the spot in 1897. Several replicas of the nugget exist, including at Museum Victoria, Melbourne and the Natural History Museum, London.
